STATEMENT FROM THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

JEFFERSON CITY---It has come to the attention of the Missouri Public Service Commission that some members of the public who attempted to come and testify at a local public hearing held at the Cass County Justice Center in Harrisonville on Monday, March 20th, were not able to enter the building after 7 o'clock.

The Public Service Commission was unaware of this and is very concerned that anyone who wants to testify in the Aquila case regarding the South Harper power plant is given that opportunity.

The Public Service Commission will conduct another local public hearing in Cass County for those who wish to testify but were unable to attend. A time and location will be announced within the next couple of days.

The Commission is also accepting written comments concerning the Aquila South Harper power plant. These comments will carry the same weight and consideration as those received at the two local public hearings held on March 20, 2006 in Harrisonville. Any individual who has not testified in this case and who wishes to make comments in writing should send them to the Public Service Commission at P.O. Box 360, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102 or they may e-mail them to pscinfo@psc.mo.gov by April 17, 2006. Please reference the case number (EA-2006-0309).
